Support for open enrollment

Some states allow K-12 students to enroll in any public school in any school district so long as that school serves their current grade level and has open availability. This is sometimes referred to as open enrollment. Supporters of this policy say it increases educational opportunities for students and increases overall public school quality through competition. Opponents of this policy say it disproportionately harms small public school districts. Generally speaking, do you support or oppose open enrollment?

Support for school choice

Some states allow parents to use the taxpayer dollars allocated for their child's public-school education, to instead pay for private, charter, religious, online, or home school. This is sometimes referred to as school choice. Supporters of this policy say it increases educational opportunities for students and increases overall school quality through competition. Opponents of this policy say it cuts funding for local public schools and makes it difficult to enforce educational standards. Generally speaking, do you support or oppose school choice?
